

Models

This subject deals with models; simplifications and idealisations of real world situations. While these might not be directly useful, they can help us gain an understanding as to how a more realistic situation might pan out.